The Measure of Your Curtains

That's the first thing we look into when you send your curtains to us. They're measured carefully before washing and then they're dried to measure—their original size and shape is retained exactly.

Our special curtain dryer insures it. Without pins or hooks to rip and tear, it holds your curtains smoothly, while they're drying.

Every little scallop is kept in place, and perfectly shaped. Your curtains are returned to you as dainty and graceful as when you hung them for the first time.

And we're just as careful in washing them. We use the mildest of white soaps, the softest of rain-water and a gentle sousing process that cannot injure the finest fabric.

When you're housecleaning send us your curtains—it will save you time, and you'll note a delightful improvement in the hang and finish of your draperies.

GRACE CATHEDRAL CANTATA

Last evening Stainer's Cantata, "The Crucifixion," was given by the Grace Cathedral choir supported by Mrs. J. A. Campbell at the organ. This cantata is perhaps the most difficult one given yet by the organization in question. There was in evidence some very good musicianship and in parts the ensemble was even more effective than when I made mention of their good work some weeks ago.

It is difficult to comment impartially on the work of the four soloists without favoring one or the other according to the prejudices of one's own taste. However, I shall discuss these voices on their merits only.

Miss Irma Jane Lewis has unquestionably a beautiful soprano voice and I have never heard it to better advantage than last evening when, before the cantata, she and Miss Clara Wain sang "The Shall Feed His Flock" and "Come Unto Him," by Handel. The call, "Come Unto Him" by Miss Lewis was given with an appealing freshness in her voice. She sang with ease and her enunciation was exceptionally good. Miss Walter's voice is rich in volume and of a firm capacity and the resonance of it was good.

Mr. Glenwood Jones, tenor soloist, is known not only in Topeka but thru this and other states as a successful oratorio tenor. It is to be regretted that he is not known in a more pointed manner because his singing certainly merits admiration. Mr. Jones sings with refined, exceptionally good taste. He gives an intelligent reading of his text and uses the music as a means to clarify the message he sings. In my judgment the tone quality is particularly pleasing in his muted tones. His singing of—and lovely beyond compare. The weary and worn with merited scorn.

Of course He has come to spare" was a meritorious piece of work. Mr. Barnes, who took the bass solo part, is an intelligent musician. His enunciation is like that of Mr. Jones, is clear to the extent that it is a pleasure to listen to it. He plays scrupulous attention to artistic shading. His understanding of employing tone inflections is comprehensive and in volume his singing leaves no room for suggestion. Mr. Barnes, in addition to being a successful soloist, is an exceptionally fine organist. His rendition of "March Pontificale" by Lennox was indeed inspiring. He does not struggle with the organ nor is he guilty of the chronic stop hunting ailment which besets nine of our ten organists. He plays the organ and makes it do his bidding thru every mood.

The ensemble work in the hymns was well balanced. The number which was the most pointedly well rendered was—

"Jesus, the Crucified, pleads for me. While He is nailed to the shameful tree, Scorned and forsaken, derided and cursed, The Crucified, breathes my name!"

Wonder of wonders, oh! how can it be? Jesus, the Crucified, pleads for me!"

The music of this hymn is as beautiful as the text and I shall long remember the way they expressed it. This body of singers is not only an asset to their church but to the whole community. People who have not heard singing of this nature are in for a quiet restful atmosphere of the service will make no mistake if they avail themselves of an opportunity to do so. There is something so calmly holds one's spirit closer to God's infinite Goodness while one sits there and feels His spirit hovering near.

If we could but get all the world to sing! If every one would sing while he works or plays and if all would worship more while singing.
